Smart black trainers for practical uniform

Trainers must be black, with no additional colours, smart and clean. Please see below some examples of trainers that would be permitted.

Shoes or ankle boots for formal uniform

Shoes, or ankle boots, must be dark brown or dark tan, flat/very low heel, leather (or vegan equivalent) and smart. They do not have to be lace-ups but they must not slip off your feet. Trainers, sandals, flip flops, etc. are not allowed. Please note, these shoes can be worn for both formal and practical uniform. Here are some examples of shoes and boots that would be permitted:

Ordering

You are expected to have your complete formal and practical uniform for your first day at Norland. It is very important that you allow time for alterations that might be required to ensure individual garments fit correctly. Alterations are not included in the cost and there may well be some additional expense if you need to alter the length of sleeves, trousers and/or dress hems. If you have a conditional offer, please do not remove the tags from the garments, or dispose of the original packaging, until your place has been confirmed after results are released in the middle of August. Our uniform suppliers have confirmed that, if necessary, as long as items of uniform are returned within 120 days in their original packaging with all tags in place, a full refund can be obtained. Do not make any alterations to the uniform until your place is confirmed.
